WESTCOTT SPORTS.

Westcott held its annual sports on Thursday of last week. The morning was fine and by noon quite a crowd had gathered from all sides. The morning was fine and by noon quite a crowd had gathered from all sides. The morning baseball game, Westcott vs. Clover Mound, was delayed due to the non-appearance of one team.

At one p.m. the athletic events started. The half mile foot race was won by H. Herber of Didsbury with H. Steckley second. The baseball game was also started, but after a few innings everybody was driven to shelter by a shower of rain. It also deterred a large number of people from the towns and surrounding country, who intended taking in the afternoon sports. However a little more than scattered the dust on the race track so the horse races were then run off, followed by the finish of the first ball game which resulted in the seventh inning in a win for Clover Mound. The next game Clover Mound vs. Rosebud ended in a dispute at the end of the seventh with Rosebud one run ahead. The latter part of the afternoon was quite cool but as no more rain fell and the sky cleared a large crowd turned out to the dance in Clarence Rhinart's barn.

Canada's Gains and Losses

Proportionate to its population Canada now has the largest favorable trade balance of any country in the world. During the fiscal year ended March 31, 1926, while imports of goods into Canada substantially increased, the export of Canadian products and manufactured articles increased to a far larger extent, with the result that during the year exports exceeded imports by the huge sum of $401,134,405. This is the largest favorable trade balance in the history of the Dominion except in the last of the war years, 1918, when enormous exportations of munitions and other war supplies at high war prices took place.

During the last fiscal year Canada not only enjoyed a favorable trade balance within the British Empire, but it also had a favorable balance with foreign countries, the adverse balance with the United States being more than offset by favorable balances with other foreign countries. The total of Canada's foreign trade last year was $2,255,939,869, or about $250 for every man, woman and child in the Dominion.

It is this large favorable trade balance which has contributed so largely to the improvement in Canadian exchange and placed the Canadian dollar at a premium in the United States as well as in other countries. It is a sign of the returning prosperity so strikingly in evidence throughout the country at the present time and a promise of further advances in the future.

But while Canada is thus making really remarkable progress in the markets of the world, it continues to suffer heavy and quite unnecessary and preventable losses at home. Of first importance, because it is the most serious, is the unnecessary loss of life from wholly preventable causes. In previous articles in this column reference has been made to losses sustained through disease which could be avoided by the exercise of proper precautions. Attention at this time may well be directed to the increasing list of killed and seriously injured for life as a result of reckless automobile driving. The newspapers are full of accounts of fatal motor accidents, nearly all of which could have been avoided by the exercise of ordinary care. Recently the Railway Commission of Canada issued a bulletin dealing with only one cause of such accidents, namely, the dangerous practices of motorists and drivers of other vehicles at railway crossings. This bulletin records the fact that the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways together reported 363 cases of gross negligence by motorists at grade crossings within the last twelve months, and these cases did not cover all crossings, but only a selected few.

One citizen is of much greater value to Canada than many thousands of dollars worth of foreign trade. Each life lost to Canada is a heavy economic loss to the country.

Another source of loss is brought to public attention every summer when the papers are filled with reports of disastrous forest fires in which the growth of centuries is wiped out and untold millions of dollars of timber destroyed. Some of these fires are started by lightning or other natural causes, but many are the direct result of carelessness on the part of campers and others.

It is not through forest fires alone that Canada suffers. The fire fiend is at work throughout the Dominion every day in the year, with the result that the per capita fire loss of Canada ranks among the highest in the world. Taking Canada as a whole, the annual fire loss is slowly decreasing, having dropped from $54,390,000 in 1922 to $48,282,000 in 1923, $45,906,000 in 1924 and $40,712,000 in 1925. But this decrease has been largely effected in Ontario and Quebec, the decrease in the former province in the four years being over $8,000,000 and in Quebec nearly $4,000,000. The record of the four Western Provinces offers an unfavorable contrast. Fire losses west of the Great Lakes were $11,768,000 in 1922, rising to $12,865,000 in 1923, $13,672,000 in 1924, and $12,508,000 in 1925. Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia all sustained heavier fire losses in 1925 than in 1922, while Manitoba showed a decrease.

The besetting sins of far too great a proportion of people in this age and country are wastefulness, carelessness, recklessness, culminating in a disregard for consequences, and inevitably resulting not only in individual and national economic loss, but in untold suffering and much loss of life.

The British Temperament

Important Facts Which Stand Out in Connection With the Recent Strike

Two great facts in connection with the general strike should be appreciated by people overseas. The first is that the ideas of the great mass of British citizens are sound, sensible and moderate. Sooner or later resort is had to reasoning rather than to violence; wherein is seen the fundamental difference between the British temperament and that prevailing in certain other countries. The second fact is that in defence of common rights and privileges, all classes will at once unite. Our love of liberty and justice, our pride in the British traditions and ideals, make highly repugnant to us the usurpations of dictatorial minorities.—Empire Mail.

Veterans On the Land

Soldier Settlement Scheme is Showing Good Results

Of the $109,000,000 advanced by the Federal Government to veterans of the great war placed on farming land, $30,000,000 has already been returned to the Dominion's treasury, according to Major John Barnett, of the soldiers' settlement board. Major Barnett further stated that the government's scheme was showing promising results and that 30,000 ex-soldiers were now helping to cultivate Canada's vast farming areas.

Fickle Fashion Affects Trade

That the instability of industries may often be attributed to fickleness of fashions is evidenced by the fact that shingling has, naturally, killed the hairpin trade, and seriously reduced hairbrush sales. Owing to the "slip-on" dress, button makers have seen dwindling profits for the last three or four years, whilst hooks and eyes have vanished, of course.

Record Trade Balance

Largest Trade Balance Per Capita of Any Country in the World

Canada now has the largest favorable trade balance per capita of any country in the world.

For the fiscal year ended March 31, 1926, Canada's favorable trade balance amounted to $401,134,405, an increase over the previous year of $116,705,299. Only on one other occasion was the Dominion's favorable balance as large, namely, the war year 1918, when it amounted to $662,637,214. Among the principal exports are agricultural products which for the 12 months under review totalled in value over $600,000,000. Of this amount grain and grain products accounted for $494,842,476, most of which were the products of the fertile farm lands of Western Canada, where about 100,000,000 acres still await cultivation, of which 25,000,000 acres are near railways and markets. Many of these lands can be bought at prices ranging from $15 to $20 an acre.

Ship Alberta Coal By Water

Claim Saving of $3.50 on Coal by the Lake Route

An appreciable reduction in the cost of delivery of Alberta coal to the Ontario consumer can be effected by the employment of waterbound carriage, according to the claims of a deputation from Owen Sound, Ontario. Headed by M. R. Duncan, ex-C.P. for North Grey, which waited on Premier Howard Ferguson to urge the government to make representations whereby the claims will be investigated by the federal authorities before any report is filed on the haulage rates in question.

It was stated that by shipping Alberta coal by water, the price "laid down" in Ontario would be $11.50 per ton, whereas, under the train haulage arrangements which prevailed last winter, the cost would be about $15 per ton.

Four Months' Immigration

An Increase of 81 Per Cent. Over Figures For Last Year

A compilation of immigration to Canada for the first four months of the calendar year 1926 shows an increase of 81 per cent. over the same four months in 1925. The actual figures are 39,442 in four months of this year compared with 21,776 in the same period a year ago. There have been increases in every month of the year ranging from 16 per cent. in January to 132 per cent. in March. For the four months in question British immigration increased from 9,319 to 13,923; immigration from the United States increased from 4,778 to 5,797, and from other countries increased from 7,679 to 19,722.

Seaman Falls Overboard in Tropical Sea and Has Thrilling Adventure

A thrilling story of a two-hour fight for life against sharks and birds of prey in the pitch darkness of a tropical sea at midnight was told by officers of the British steamer Ripley Castle.

The big freighter was just south of the equator bound from Philadelphia to Capetown when Tony Madison, 26-year-old seaman, lost his balance and fell into the water.

In the darkness his fall was unobserved and he was not missed until an hour later when the ship put about and slowly retraced its course.

In the morning, faint cries were heard. Two buoys with flares were tossed overboard and Madison was seen struggling in the water. When the seaman was pulled aboard, both legs were bleeding from shark bites and his face was torn and pecked by great birds which had swarmed down on him.

This New Brunswick Woman Restored by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Mrs. James Belyea, Brown's Flat, N.B., says:—"I am writing to tell you the great good I had through the timely use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My health had failed and I was troubled with great weakness. I had no appetite and frequently had dizzy spells. The least exertion would make my heart palpitate violently and I felt tired at all times. I had doctored a great deal without getting much relief, and was feeling greatly discouraged when I finally decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The happy results following the use of this medicine can best be summed up by saying that I am again perfectly well, able to do my housework and enjoy life once more. I feel it a duty to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all weak people."

If you have any, or all, of the symptoms above noted, do not delay, begin treatment at once with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You will be surprised to note the improvement in your condition after a few weeks. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. If you will send your name and address a little booklet, "Building Up the Blood," will be sent free.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Joanna, a modern, pretty, shop girl is to have a million dollars to spend. Graydon, her employer, tells her. There are no "conditions." She is not even to know the name of her benefactor. Nothing more than this can be learned from banker Eggleston, nor his suave, man-about-town nephew who helps her write her first check and tells her that he intends to make love to her. Dazed by the sudden flood of undreamed of wealth, crushed by the fact that her shop girl friends will not believe she gained it honorably she is confronted by John her childhood sweetheart. He also scorns her tale, angry accusations are said—a scene ensues. Joanna crushed sinks to the floor. Later she finds that Mrs. Adams, her landlady, does believe in her. The next day is to be dedicated to George, a shop girl companion. They plan to spend some of the fortune for finery.

"Tricks," she confessed, laughing to him. "I could hold my own with George—he's been rather a chum, you know—or with any of the rest. If they had somebody I wanted I usually landed them if I tried, and they had to start early to get anyone away from me—but now, well, I'm in for new competition now."

A woman, a young woman, whose smooth black hair clung to a beautifully formed head; a woman with sombre black eyes that suggested twin flowers of night, hovered close to the table and paused. An observer would have thought that she had stopped, and was about to speak to one or the other of the pair at the table. But she moved on, her slender hand fluttering at her escort's sleeve. Only one who observed very closely would have detected the almost imperceptible signal that Brandon passed to her with a gesture of his cigaret. Joanna was not even conscious of the little tableau of an instant. Brandon kept her attention.

"You think, then, that your problems will have to do mostly with what you are calling competition from your own sex? That implies that your plans, when formed, will be a conquest of men?"

Joanna's brow wrinkled. "That sounds as if I'd admitted something I shouldn't. Won't you tell me what?"

"But you haven't," he protested, earnestly. "What else should there be for you to plan—but to bring the moths to your candle-flame. Could there be anything more interesting for a girl so lovely, and so free from care?"

Joanna smiled into his eyes brightly. "There really isn't anything else

to do, is there? For a while I shall be buying things. No one will tell me of anything else to do with the money. And there are so many things to buy, I hardly know where to start in. I shall have to find someone, too, to help me. George has been my best girl friend, but she's too much like I am. All she can do is to squeal. That's a trick she developed until it's become second nature to her. I imagine men like you, for example, require more efforts on the part of girls than we could think of behind the silk counter."

Brandon smiled with her. "You mustn't class me as so different from the rest of 'your boys' as you call them. You have succeeded admirably in captivating me, without added wiles. And you can't put me down as a plain fortune hunter, can you? You see I have a famous banker as a doting uncle and I've heaps of stocks and bonds and such things—you are not to consider me as having set a trap for your millions."

"There—that's what I mean," Joanna flung at him. "I shall have to learn how to meet you and your kind when you say things like that. The best sort of talk I've ever had for a man who went right down into deep water was, 'come in out of the wet,' or something like that. John has been the only one I could ever allow to talk seriously to me about—well, about my ever being married, you know."

Brandon caught the wistfulness in her voice, the wistfulness that came into it at every mention of John. His lips curled again, ever so slightly. "You will have to listen to a great many men who will talk of marriage," he said. "I think it is better for you that you had your little smash, last night before you had plunged too far. John will be waiting, when you are ready to call him—if you really want him."

A deep flush warmed Joanna's face. Her eyes hardened. Brandon saw, but he had been deliberate. He met her eyes coldly. Before she could make her attack he disarmed her.

"I fancy that whoever bestowed a fortune upon you would prefer that you be uninfluenced in your spending of it—for a time, at any rate. That, though, is only my own conclusion. And I'm wondering if you will fit John into your new career as snugly as you fitted him into the one behind you."

Again Joanna surveyed the company around her while she considered what sort of a reply to make.

She realized that Brandon had been leading up to this—and she was unhappy before a doubt that he had succeeded in planting in her mind. Would John fit in? Now? Into this gay world of pleasure, joy, unrepression, to which she was being admitted? Could she, with him holding up for her the examples of his own old fashioned ideals, exact from her new opportunities their full need of the only things she knew to be worth while. She hated Brandon, fiercely, she concluded, for conjuring up the doubt. And hated him for the cunning with which he had stirred it.

She was brought abruptly out of her reflections. The woman who had once before hovered at the table, had come up again. Joanna had not seen that quiet signal from Brandon's cigaret which was instantly caught at the nearby table where a woman sat with her escort, a man made much after the pattern of Brandon himself.

Brandon rose and greeted the newcomer. Joanna looked up at her, startled by a sleek, perfectly assembled beauty that was as pungent as the essence of some heavy perfume. Brandon made his presentations easily. Joanna caught the softness of a foreign sounding name, and heard that Brandon called the stranger, "Yvonne." Despite the pretenses, Joanna sensed, instinctively, that the meeting had been arranged.

with which the newcomers were settled into their places at the table by two waiters, each more excitable than the other, Joanna was vaguely uncomfortable—out of her accustomed depths. Her store of smart things seemed utterly inadequate to the easy greetings and persiflage. Within her own experiences, introductory conversations took one or the other of two set courses—herself, or "himself." She was never concerned with other women, whether they liked her or not. Not the ones who came and went across her horizon. They were all like her, merely rivals, equipped as she was, with the common weapons of our modern flapperhood—lips always shaped for kisses, a ready wisdom that guarded those lips when occasions arose, clothes that added to the lure of her and a skill at defense or attack. In Joanna's scheme of things any girl, these days, must be ready instantly to take the defense or launch an attack—one or the other was certain to be necessary. She and George got along splendidly in the induction of all new acquaintanceships among the available supply of properly mannered, good-enough-looking young chaps with new places to go. She considered now, when she stole a glance at the man who had come up with the woman with the sleek, black hair, that by the time he had said, "How do you do?" to George, that little lady would have blithely inquired of him:

"Well now, look who's here: Why do you think you amount to so much?" And she reflected that, this time, George would get the worst of it in any such encounter.

As she had concluded a moment before, at her first sight of him, Kenilworth—"Roddy," Brandon had called him—was made in the same mold as Brandon, but there was a difference. She disliked Brandon, because she feared that he was to have some tragic influence over her and her mysterious future, but, she admitted, he wouldn't be little. He would not be the sort who would plot for some small favor. If he should want to amuse himself with a woman, he would aim at her soul. She knew the kind—and the danger they embodied.

Among practically all nations, from the remotest of antiquity, the doll is held to have been the oldest of toys. It seems to have figured as a plaything for the youngsters in every land and among all manner of peoples. ## U. S. History Re-Written

Revised Histories For Use In American Public Schools

Antagonism to Britain has been a dominating note in the public school histories of many of the United States down through a century. George III. has been the bete noir of the American common school. Braddock, Burgoyne and Cornwallis have been fair to middling ogres and the Boston tea party has been a prank to rank with Pickett's charge. This has all been natural, considering the frailty of human nature, whether American or Canadian.

Now it appears that a new group of histories of the United States, for use in the public schools, is making its appearance. The world war put the old geographies in the same class as a car without a self-starter and it made the old school histories as out of date as a phonograph with a horn. The histories, it would seem from various reviews of them we notice in the American papers, have considerably upset the old lines of antagonism. Britain comes in for more friendly attention. The Kaiser takes fat George's place in the ducking pool; Von Tirpitz and one Hindenburg now outrank, as objects of scorn, those other Germans who drank much Christian liquor the night that Washington crossed the Delaware.

We wonder what some Anglophobe newspapers think of the new histories. Perhaps they have not seen them yet, their editors being more interested in divorces, scandals, bobbed hair and hooch, evidences of modern civilization, than in the records of other days.—Financial Post.

Good Paying Investment

Britain Has Large Revenue From Shares In Suez Canal

The Empress Eugenie of France was one of the first passengers taken through the Suez Canal when it was officially opened to traffic in 1869. She was aboard the first vessel passed through. Disraeli's purchase of the shares in the Suez Canal which had been held by the Khedive of Egypt, on November 25, 1875, was considered his boldest and timeliest stroke. By this move Great Britain's position in Egypt and the Near East was greatly strengthened. Not only was France curbed but the British nation received an investment that has more than quadrupled in capital value during the fifty years that have elapsed.

Little Helps For This Week

Trust in the Lord with all thine heart, and lean not unto thine own understanding. Prov. III, 5.

Oh let Thy sacred will All Thy delight in me fulfill! Let me not think an action mine own way.

But as Thy love shall sway, Resigning up the rudder to Thy skill. —George Herbert.

Our helm is given up to a better guidance than our own. The course of events is quite too strong for any helmsman; and our little wherry is taken in two by the ship of the Great Admiral, which knows the way, and has the force to draw men and states and planets to their good.

Britain's Radio Fog Signal

Apparatus Controlled by Wireless Has Been Perfected

The perfection of a fog-signalling apparatus, controlled by wireless, for use in places where it is too expensive or otherwise impracticable to maintain and attend lighthouses, is announced by the Marconi Company.

The first wireless-controlled fog signal has been established in the Firth of Clyde, Scotland. When a fog is observed from the central station, the keeper sends out wireless impulses which start a gun firing once every twenty seconds until the keeper stops it by another set of wireless impulses.

The invention is expected to greatly reduce the expense of maintaining fog signals.

Important Discovery is Claimed to Have Been Made in Germany

The discovery of a method of producing vitamines artificially is reported to have been made by three scientists, whereby it is possible to impregnate various foodstuffs with vitamines.

For the present, the names of the scientists have not been made public, for the particular reason, it is stated, that in the next few days Leipzig University will issue important details of the discovery.

RED HOT JULY DAYS HARD ON THE BABY

July—the month of oppressive heat; red-hot days and sweltering nights; is extremely hard on little ones. Diarrhoea, dysentery, colic and cholera infantum carry off thousands of precious little lives every summer. The mother must be constantly on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they come on suddenly to fight them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during the hot summer as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels and stomach, and an occasional dose given to the well child will prevent summer complaint, or if the trouble does come on suddenly will banish it. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The average cost of picking, hauling, washing and packing a box of oranges is about forty cents, and this does not include the cost of growing.

Your Home Medicine Chest.—Among the standard household remedies that should always be on hand in your home medicine chest, none is more important than Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Its manifold usefulness in relieving pain and healing sickness is known by many thousands throughout the land. Always use Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for relieving rheumatic and sciatic pains, treating sore throats and chests, coughs, burns, scalds, cuts, bruises and sprains.

Lake Superior, the largest expanse of fresh water in the world, has an area of 31,809 square miles.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION FOR MRS. PENN

She Escaped It by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Windsor, Ont.—"After the birth of my first baby I was very much run-down in health and the doctor said I must have an operation as I was suffering from a displacement. A friend wanted me to try your medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and I took it steadily for a year. During this time I was carrying my second baby and I felt real well all the time and did not have a hard confinement. I feel sure the Vegetable Compound did me a lot of good, and all my people do, too. One sister in Leamington, Ontario, takes it, and both sisters praise it as a good medicine. I am more than pleased with the result."—Mrs. W. PENN, Windsor, Ontario.

Mrs. Corbin Relieved from Pain. Stewiacke, N. S.—"I had pains across my back and in my side for two years after my first baby was born. My mother had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I read about it in the papers, so I tried it and the pains all left me. I have a family of three children now, and the medicine helped me during the months before they were born. I recommend it to my friends."—Mrs. CARY W. CORBIN, Main Street, Stewiacke, Nova Scotia.

Provincial Notes.

Fall Wheat Cutting

Cutting of fall wheat started in southern Alberta during the present week. The second cutting of Alfalfa has also started. Big Attendance at Exhibitions

The total attendance at Calgary stampede for the five days of last week was 197,000, which was nearly 20,000 greater than last year.

At the Edmonton exhibition and historical pageant during the present week, record attendances have also been realized, more than 100,000 attending during the week.

Roads Convention for Alberta

The annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association will be held in Edmonton, Alberta, some time in September, the exact date to be announced shortly. Members of the executive committee of the association visited the province recently to arrange for the convention. About 700 delegates are expected to attend.

Big Tourist Traffic

More than 4,000 tourists have registered at the Calgary auto camp since July 1, according to figures compiled there. Many of these tourists have gone to the summer resorts in the mountains of the province.

Pool Members go to Australia

For the purpose of advising Australian wheat growers on the formation of a wheat pool, members of the Canadian wheat pool will go there during the present month. The Alberta representatives will be H. W. Wood, president of the Alberta Pool, for Alberta. The party will also visit the Orient to study market conditions and will be away for four months.

Employment Increases

Considerable improvement over employment conditions of last year is noted during the present season. During the last six weeks the government employment bureaus have placed from 200 to 250 more per week than last year. Geo. Melvor, sales manager for the same period last year. In order to make plans for the busy season, a conference of the western passenger association with representatives of the western passenger association with representatives of the western provincial governments will be held the coming week at Winnipeg.

Wins Girl's Scholarship

The scholarship offered by Hon. Geo. Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, to the member of the girls' clubs of women's institutes of Alberta accomplishing the best work during the year, has been won by Miss Neva Daly of Munton. The scholarship provides three months' free course at one of the agricultural schools in domestic science.

Canada's Gains and Losses

Proportionate to its population Canada now has the largest favorable trade balance of any country in the world. During the fiscal year ended March 31, 1926, while imports of goods into Canada substantially increased, the export of Canadian products and manufactured articles increased to a far larger extent, with the result that during the year exports exceeded imports by the huge sum of $401,134,405. This is the largest favorable trade balance in the history of the Dominion except in the last of the war years, 1918, when enormous exportations of munitions and other war supplies at high war prices took place.

During the last fiscal year Canada not only enjoyed a favorable trade balance within the British Empire, but it also had a favorable balance with foreign countries, the adverse balance with the United States being more than offset by favorable balances with other foreign countries. The total of Canada's foreign trade last year was $2,255,939,869, or about $250 for every man, woman and child in the Dominion.

It is this large favorable trade balance which has contributed so largely to the improvement in Canadian exchange and placed the Canadian dollar at a premium in the United States as well as in other countries. It is a sign of the returning prosperity so strikingly in evidence throughout the country at the present time and a promise of further advances in the future.

But while Canada is thus making really remarkable progress in the markets of the world, it continues to suffer heavy and quite unnecessary and preventable losses at home. Of first importance, because it is the most serious, is the unnecessary loss of life from wholly preventable causes. In previous articles in this column reference has been made to losses sustained through disease which could be avoided by the exercise of proper precautions. Attention at this time may well be directed to the increasing list of killed and seriously injured for life as a result of reckless automobile driving. The newspapers are full of accounts of fatal motor accidents, nearly all of which could have been avoided by the exercise of ordinary care. Recently the Railway Commission of Canada issued a bulletin dealing with only one cause of such accidents, namely, the dangerous practices of motorists and drivers of other vehicles at railway crossings. This bulletin records the fact that the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways together reported 383 cases of gross negligence by motorists at grade crossings within the last twelve months, and these cases did not cover all crossings, but only a selected few.

One citizen is of much greater value to Canada than many thousands of dollars worth of foreign trade. Each life lost to Canada is a heavy economic loss to the country.

Another source of loss is brought to public attention every summer when the papers are filled with reports of disastrous forest fires in which the growth of centuries is wiped out and untold millions of dollars of timber destroyed. Some of these fires are started by lightning or other natural causes, but many are the direct result of carelessness on the part of campers and others.

It is not through forest fires alone that Canada suffers. The fire fiend is at work throughout the Dominion every day in the year, with the result that the per capita fire loss of Canada ranks among the highest in the world. Taking Canada as a whole, the annual fire loss is slowly decreasing, having dropped from $54,390,000 in 1922 to $48,282,000 in 1923, $45,906,000 in 1924 and $40,712,000 in 1925. But this decrease has been largely effected in Ontario and Quebec, the decrease in the former province in the four years being over $8,000,000 and in Quebec nearly $4,000,000. The record of the four Western Provinces offers an unfavorable contrast. Fire losses west of the Great Lakes were $11,768,000 in 1922, rising to $13,865,000 in 1923, $13,672,000 in 1924, and $12,508,000 in 1925. Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia all sustained heavier fire losses in 1925 than in 1922, while Manitoba showed a decrease.

The besetting sins of far too great a proportion of people in this age and country are wastefulness, carelessness, recklessness, culminating in a disregard for consequences, and inevitably resulting not only in individual and national economic loss, but in untold suffering and much loss of life.

The British Temperament

Important Facts Which Stand Out in Connection With the Recent Strike

Two great facts in connection with the general strike should be appreciated by people overseas. The first is that the ideas of the great mass of British citizens are sound, sensible and moderate. Sooner or later resort is had to reasoning rather than to violence; wherein is seen the fundamental difference between the British temperament and that prevailing in certain other countries. The second fact is that in defence of common rights and privileges, all classes will at once unite. Our love of liberty and justice, our pride in the British traditions and ideals, make highly repugnant to us the usurpations of dictatorial minorities.—Empire Mall.

Veterans On the Land

Soldier Settlement Scheme is Showing Good Results

Of the $100,000,000 advanced by the Federal Government to veterans of the great war placed on farming land, $30,000,000 has already been returned to the Dominion's treasury, according to Major John Barnett, of the soldiers' settlement board. Major Barnett further stated that the government's scheme was showing promising results, and that 30,000 ex-soldiers were now helping to cultivate Canada's vast farming areas.

They are a strengthening and stimulating medicine, correcting the disorders of digestion that the worms cause and imparting a healthy tone to the system most beneficial to development.

Fickle Fashion Affects Trade
That the instability of industries may often be attributed to fickleness of fashions is evidenced by the fact that shingling has, naturally, killed the hairpin trade, and seriously reduced hairbrush sales. Owing to the "slip-on" dress, button makers have seen dwindling profits for the last three or four years, whilst hooks and eyes have vanished, of course.

Record Trade Balance

Largest Trade Balance Per Capita of Any Country in the World

Canada now has the largest favorable trade balance per capita of any country in the world.

For the fiscal year ended March 31, 1926, Canada's favorable trade balance amounted to $401,134,405, an increase over the previous year of $116,705,299. Only on one other occasion was the Dominion's favorable balance as large, namely, the war year 1918, when it amounted to $662,637,214. Among the principal exports are agricultural products which for the 12 months under review totalled in value over $600,000,000. Of this amount grain and grain products accounted for $494,842,476, most of which were the products of the fertile farm lands of Western Canada, where about 100,000,000 acres still await cultivation, of which 25,000,000 acres are near railways and markets. Many of these lands can be bought at prices ranging from $15 to $20 an acre.

Ship Alberta Coal By Water

Claim Saving of $3.50 on Coal by the Lake Route

An appreciable reduction in the cost of delivery of Alberta coal to the Ontario consumer can be effected by the employment of waterbound carriage, according to the claims of a deputa-tion from Owen Sound, Ontario. Headed by M. R. Duncan, ex-C.P. for North Grey, which waited on Premier Howard Ferguson to urge the government to make representations whereby the claims will be investigated by the federal authorities before any report is filed on the haulage rates in question.

It was stated that by shipping Alberta coal by water, the price "laid down" in Ontario would be $11.50 per ton, whereas, under the train haulage arrangements which prevailed last winter, the cost would be about $15 per ton.

Four Months' Immigration

An Increase of 81 Per Cent. Over Figures For Last Year

A compilation of immigration to Canada for the first four months of the calendar year, 1926 shows an increase of 81 per cent. over the same four months in 1925. The actual figures are 39,442 in four months of this year compared with 21,776 in the same period a year ago. There have been increases in every month of the year ranging from 16 per cent. in January to 132 per cent. in March. For the four months in question British immigration increased from 9,319 to 13,923; immigration from the United States increased from 4,778 to 5,797, and from other countries increased from 7,679 to 19,722.

Battle With Sharks

Seaman Falls Overboard in Tropical Sea and Has Thrilling Adventure

A thrilling story of a two-hour fight for life against sharks and birds of prey in the pitch darkness of a tropical sea at midnight was told by officers of the British steamer Ripley Castle.

The big freighter was just south of the equator bound from Philadelphia to Capetown when Tony Madison, 26-year-old seaman, lost his balance and fell into the water.

In the darkness his fall was unobserved and he was not missed until an hour later when the ship put about and slowly retraced its course.

In the morning, faint cries were heard. Two buoys with flares were tossed overboard and Madison was seen struggling in the water. When the seaman was pulled aboard, both legs were bleeding from shark bites and his face was torn and pecked by great birds which had swarmed down on him.

HAD NO APPETITE WEAK AND DIZZY

This New Brunswick Woman Restored by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Mrs. James Belyea, Brown's Flat, N.B., says:—"I am writing to tell you the great good I had through the timely use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My health had failed and I was troubled with great weakness. I had no appetite and frequently had dizzy spells. The least exertion would make my heart palpitate violently and I felt tired at all times. I had doctored a great deal without getting much relief, and was feeling greatly discouraged when I finally decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The happy results following the use of this medicine can best be summed up by saying that I am again perfectly well, able to do my housework and enjoy life once more. I feel it a duty to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all weak people."

If you have any, or all, of the symptoms above noted, do not delay, begin treatment at once with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You will be surprised to note the improvement in your condition after a few weeks. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. ## THE STORY THUS FAR

Joanna, a modern, pretty, shop girl is to have a million dollars to spend. Graydon, her employer, tells her. There are no "conditions." She is not even to know the name of her benefactor. Nothing more than this can be learned from banker Eggleston, nor his suave, man-about-town nephew who helps her write her first check and tells her that he intends to make love to her. Dazed by the sudden flood of undreamed of wealth, crushed by the fact that her shop girl friends will not believe she gained it honorably she is confronted by John her childhood sweetheart. He also scorns her tale, angry accusations are said—a scene ensues. Joanna crushed sinks to the floor. Later she finds that Mrs. Adams, her landlady, does believe in her. The next day is to be dedicated to George, a shop girl companion. They plan to spend some of the fortune for finery.

"Tricks," she confessed, laughing to him. "I could hold my own with George—he's been rather a chum, you know—or with any of the rest. If they had somebody I wanted I usually landed them if I tried, and they had to start early to get anyone away from me—but now, well, I'm in for new competition now."

A woman, a young woman, whose smooth black hair clung to a beautifully formed head; a woman with sombre black eyes that suggested twin flowers of night, hovered close to the table and paused. An observer would have thought that she had stopped, and was about to speak to one or the other of the pair at the table. But she moved on, her slender hand fluttering at her escort's sleeve. Only one who observed very closely would have detected the almost imperceptible signal that Brandon passed to her with a gesture of his cigarette. Joanna was not even conscious of the little tableau of an instant. Brandon kept her attention.

"You think, then, that your problems will have to do mostly with what you are calling competition from your own sex? That implies that your plans, when formed, will be a conquest of men?"

Joanna's brow wrinkled. "That sounds as if I'd admitted something I shouldn't. Won't you tell me what?"

"But you haven't," he protested, earnestly. "What else should there be for you to plan—but to bring the moths to your candle-flame. Could there be anything more interesting for a girl so lovely, and so free from care?"

to do, is there? For a while I shall be buying things. No one will tell me of anything else to do with the money. And there are so many things to buy, I hardly know where to start in. I shall have to find someone, too, to help me. George has been my best girl friend, but she's too much like I am. All she can do is to squeal. That's a trick she developed until it's become second nature to her. I imagine men like you, for example, require more efforts on the part of girls than we could think of behind the silk counter."

Brandon smiled with her. "You mustn't class me as so different from the rest of 'your boys' as you call them. You have succeeded admirably in captivating me, without added wiles. And you can't put me down as a plain fortune hunter, can you? You see I have a famous banker as a dotting uncle and I've heaps of stocks and bonds and such things—you are not to consider me as having set a trap for your millions."

"There—that's what I mean," Joanna flung at him. "I shall have to learn how to meet you and your kind when you say things like that. The best sort of talk I've ever had for a man who went right down into deep water was, 'come in out of the wet,' or something like that. John has been the only one I could ever allow to talk seriously to me about—well, about my ever being married, you know."

Brandon caught the wistfulness in her voice, the wistfulness that came into it at every mention of John. His lips curled again, ever so slightly. "You will have to listen to a great many men who will talk of marriage," he said. "I think it is better for you that you had your little smash, last night before you had plunged too far. John will be waiting, when you are ready to call him—if you really want him."

A deep flush warmed Joanna's face. Her eyes hardened. Brandon saw, but he had been deliberate. He met her eyes coldly. Before she could make her attack he disarmed her.

"I fancy that whoever bestowed a fortune upon you would prefer that you be uninfluenced in your spending of it—for a time, at any rate. That, though, is only my own conclusion. And I'm wondering if you will fit John into your new career as snugly as you fitted him into the one behind you."

Again Joanna surveyed the company around her while she considered what sort of a reply to make.

She realized that Brandon had been leading up to this—and she was unhappy before a doubt that he had succeeded in planting in her mind. Would John fit in? Now? Into this gay world of pleasure, joy, unrepression, to which she was being admitted? Could she, with him holding up for her the examples of his own old-fashioned ideals, exact from her new opportunities their full need of the only thing she knew to be worth while. She hated Brandon, fiercely, she concluded, for conjuring up the doubt. And hated him for the cunning with which he had stirred it.

She was brought abruptly out of her reflections. The woman who had once before hovered at the table, had come up again. Joanna had not seen that quiet signal from Brandon's cigarette which was instantly caught at the nearby table where a woman sat with her escort, a man made much after the pattern of Brandon himself.

Brandon rose and greeted the newcomer. Joanna looked up at her, startled by a sleek, perfectly assembled beauty that was as pungent as the essence of some heavy perfume. Brandon made his presentations easily. Joanna caught the softness of a foreign sounding name, and heard that Brandon called the stranger, "Yvonne." Despite the pretenses, Joanna sensed, instinctively, that the meeting had been arranged.

Joanna Meets Another Suitor

with which the newcomers were settled into their places at the table by two waiters, each more excitable than the other, Joanna was vaguely uncomfortable—out of her accustomed depths. Her store of smart things seemed utterly inadequate to the easy greetings and persiflage. Within her own experiences, introductory conversations took one or the other of two set courses—herself, or "himself." She was never concerned with other women, whether they liked her or not. Not the ones who came and went across her horizon. They were all like her, merely rivals, equipped as she was, with the common weapons of our modern flapperhood—lips always shaped for kisses, a ready wisdom that guarded those lips when occasions arose, clothes that added to the lure of her and a skill at defense or attack. In Joanna's scheme of things any girl, these days, must be ready instantly to take the defense or launch an attack—one or the other was certain to be necessary. She and Georgia got along splendidly in the induction of all new acquaintanceships among the available supply of properly mannered, good-enough-looking young chaps with new places to go. She considered now, when she stole a glance at the man who had come up with the woman with the sleek, black hair, that by the time he had said, "How do you do?" to Georgia, that little lady would have blithely inquired of him:

"Well now, look who's here: Why do you think you amount to so much?" And she reflected that, this time, Georgia would get the worst of it in any such encounter.

As she had concluded a moment before, at her first sight of him, Kenilworth—"Roddy," Brandon had called him—was made in the same mold as Brandon, but there was a difference. She disliked Brandon, because she feared that he was to have some tragic influence over her and her mysterious future, but, she admitted, he wouldn't be little. He would not be the sort who would plot for some small favor. If he should want to amuse himself with a woman, he would aim at her soul. She knew the kind—and the danger they embodied.

Doll Oldest Known Toy

Among practically all nations, from the remotest of antiquity, the doll is held to have been the oldest of toys. It seems to have figured as a plaything for the youngsters in every land and among all manner of peoples. Edward Lovett of London has made a collection of dolls and has one in it said to be 4,000 years old. It was found in an Egyptian tomb.

"I hear you're moving" nearer to London, McTavish. How's that?" "Ma crystal set's na loud enough."

U. S. History Re-Written

Revised Histories For Use in American Public Schools

Antagonism to Britain has been a dominating note in the public school histories of many of the United States down through a century. George III. has been the bete noir of the American common school. Braddock, Burgoyne and Cornwallis have been fair to middling ogres and the Boston tea party has been a prank to rank with Pickett's charge. This has all been natural, considering the frailty of human nature, whether American or Canadian.

Now it appears that a new group of histories of the United States, for use in the public schools, is making its appearance. The world war put the old geographies in the same class as a car without a self-starter and it made the old school histories as out of date as a phonograph with a horn. The histories, it would seem from various reviews of them we notice in the American papers, have considerably upset the old lines of antagonism. Britain comes in for more friendly attention. The Kaiser takes fat George's place in the ducking pool; Von Tirpitz and one Hindenburg now outrank, as objects of scorn, those other Germans who drank much Christian liquor the night that Washington crossed the Delaware.

We wonder what some Anglophobe newspapers think of the new histories. Perhaps they have not seen them yet, their editors being more interested in divorces, scandals, bobbed hair and hooch, evidences of modern civilization, than in the records of other days.—Financial Post.

Good Paying Investment

Britain Has Large Revenue From Shares in Suez Canal

The Empress Eugenie of France was one of the first passengers taken through the Suez Canal when it was officially opened to traffic in 1869. She was aboard the first vessel passed through. Disraeli's purchase of the shares in the Suez Canal which had been held by the Khedive of Egypt, on November 25, 1875, was considered his boldest and timeliest stroke. By this move Great Britain's position in Egypt and the Near East was greatly strengthened. Not only was France curbed but the British nation received an investment that has more than quadrupled in capital value during the fifty years that have elapsed.

Trust in the Lord with all thine heart, and lean not unto thine own understanding. Prov. III, 5.

Oh let Thy sacred will All Thy delight in me fulfill! Let me not think an action mine own way.

But as Thy love shall sway, Resigning up the rudder to Thy skill. —George Herbert.

Our helm is given up to a better guidance than our own. The course of events is quite too strong for any helmsman; and our little wherry is taken in two by the ship of the Great Admiral, which knows the way, and has the force to draw men and states and planets to their good.

—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Britain's Radio Fog Signal

Apparatus Controlled by Wireless Has Been Perfected

The perfection of a fog-signalling apparatus, controlled by wireless, for use in places where it is too expensive or otherwise impracticable to maintain and attend lighthouses, is announced by the Marconi Company.

The first wireless-controlled fog signal has been established in the Firth of Clyde, Scotland. When a fog is observed from the central station, the keeper sends out wireless impulses which start a gun firing once every twenty seconds until the keeper stops it by another set of wireless impulses.

The invention is expected to greatly reduce the expense of maintaining fog signals.

Important Discovery is Claimed to Have Been Made in Germany

The discovery of a method of producing vitamines artificially is reported to have been made by three scientists, whereby it is possible to impregnate various foodstuffs with vitamines.

For the present, the names of the scientists have not been made public, for the particular reason, it is stated, that in the next few days Leipzig University will issue important details of the discovery.

RED HOT JULY DAYS HARD ON THE BABY

July—the month of oppressive heat; red-hot days and sweltering nights; is extremely hard on little ones. Diarrhoea, dysentery, colic and cholera infantum carry off thousands of precious little lives every summer. The mother must be constantly on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they come on suddenly to fight them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during the hot summer as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels and stomach, and an occasional dose given to the well child will prevent summer complaint, or if the trouble does come on suddenly will banish it. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The average cost of picking, hauling, washing and packing a box of oranges is about forty cents, and this does not include the cost of growing.

Your Home Medicine Chest.—Among the standard household remedies that should always be on hand in your home medicine chest, none is more important than Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Its manifold usefulness in relieving pain and healing sickness is known by many thousands throughout the land. Always use Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for relieving rheumatic and sciatic pains, treating sore throats and chests, coughs, burns, scalds, cuts, bruises and sprains.

Lake Superior, the largest expanse of fresh water in the world, has an area of 31,800 square miles.

No child should be allowed to suffer an hour from worms when prompt relief can be got in a simple but strong remedy—Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION FOR MRS. PENN

Windsor, Ont. — "After the birth of my first baby I was very much run-down in health and the doctor said I must have an operation as I was suffering from a displacement. A friend wanted me to try your medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and I took it steadily for a year. During this time I was carrying my second baby and I felt real well all the time and did not have a hard confinement. I feel sure the Vegetable Compound did me a lot of good, and all my people do, too. One sister in Leamington, Ontario, takes it, and both sisters praise it as a good medicine. I am more than pleased with the result." — Mrs. W. PENN, Windsor, Ontario.

Mrs. Corbin Relieved from Pain. Stewiacke, N. S. — "I had pains across my back and in my side for two years after my first baby was born. My mother had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I read about it in the papers, so I tried it and the pains all left me. I have a family of three children now, and the medicine helped me during the months before they were born. I recommend it to my friends." — Mrs. CARY W. CORBIN, Main Street, Stewiacke, Nova Scotia.

Our Wednesday night prayer meeting for this week and the evening service next Sunday is called off in favor of the Mennonite Camp meeting now in progress. Thus all the Ev. folks will be at liberty to worship with our Mennonite friends in the Camp.

This being the holiday season and owing to the fact that so many of the young people are away at present on their vacation, our Sr. League meetings are cancelled for July and August.

The sympathy of a large circle of relatives and friends is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Helm in the loss of their infant daughter who died in the Didsbury hospital last Sunday morning after only about three days illness. The funeral was held here in town on Monday in the home of the child's grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Helm. Rev. H. E. Roppel officiated using 2 Kings 4:26, "It is well with the Child," as the sermon text.

A very pleasant "Let us be acquainted" surprise was given last Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Gable in honor of Miss Ella Dahmer of Kitchener, Ont., who is a niece of Mrs. Gable. About 30 relatives and friends, mostly all originating from Kitchener or New Hamburg Ont., were present. Most of the evening was spent in Ontario conversation. A dainty lunch was also served after which the guests departed, hoping to all meet again.

Saskatoon, July 19—Leaders of the Progressive party in Saskatchewan, after two days' conference here, at which the political situation was thoroughly discussed, issued a statement which declares that it was the consensus of opinion of the gathering that the extent to which the Liberal and Conservative organizations sacrificed the interests of the country for party advantage, the revelations disclosed in the customs probe of corrupt administration and the source of campaign funds of both old parties and their domination by the big financial interests, emphasized clearly the essential need of retaining the Progressive group at Ottawa.

The statement says that while no resolution was passed dealing with contesting of constituencies "It was unanimously agreed that the absence of Progressive candidates, particularly in rural seats, would only mean the disfranchisement of a great part of the electorate."
